FIGURES SHOW VALUE OF OPEN OCEAN HIGHWAY

[By Latest Mail]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—How enormously important it has been to the export trade of the United States that the high seas have been kept open to ships for the Allies can be appreciated by an examination of the Department of Commerce figures.

Out of the $195,000,000 exported by us in October, more than $102,000,000 went to the United Kingdom and her colonies and dependencies; nearly $26,000,000 went to France, Japan and Russia. To have had the merchant marines of those belligerents demoni-calized or suppressed, therefore, would have utterly ruined our export business.

Indeed, if it has been vital to the Allies to command the seas and keep their ports open, it has been hardly less vital to us in the matter of foreign trade. And it is not merely the war which draws the great bulk of our ship
